JESS Wright strikes a flirty pose — a week after she re-created Christina Aguilera's Dirrty dance routine on telly.

The ex Towie star flashed even more flesh in this lingerie shoot than she did in the red chaps and bra she wore for her TV take-off on ITV show Dance Dance Dance.

Jess, 31 — sister of telly host Mark Wright — is back tonight in the contest, which challenges celebrities to perform iconic dance routines.

She said: "I've been having the time of my life."

That sounds like a famous song. So can we expect Dirty Dancing tonight, Jess?

FASHION OWE-B.E.

EXCLUSIVE by EMMA BRANKIN, Biz on Sunday Editor

VICTORIA Beckham's fashion empire may have helped to earn her an OBE — but it has also reported a £4.6million loss.

The designer brand boss's firm owes one of her husband David Beckham's businesses £6.7million after he continued to lend it money.

Latest accounts reveal her Victoria Beckham label made £36.5million in sales in 2015 — but still ended up in the red.

In March last year The Sun revealed how her firm, set up in 2008, reported a profit after David's company transferred £5.2million.

His DB Ventures posted a £44million profit yesterday with paperwork referring to "a £3million pledge — along with Beckham Brand Holdings Ltd, to secure the banking arrangements of Victoria Beckham Ltd".

It also states: "At the balance sheet date, the amount owed by Victoria Beckham Limited was £6,671,744."

A spokeswoman for Beckham Brand Holdings said: "These businesses may be funded in different ways at any point in time."

KEEGAN FEAR

MICHELLE Keegan says she feared she might never work again after leaving Coronation Street.

The actress, who played Tina McIntyre, said quitting the soap three years ago was a risky decision.

The 29-year-old admitted: "I was nervous — I didn't know if I was going to work again. There was no going back, because Tina died. But I didn't want to look back in ten years' time and think: 'What if?'"

Keegan, who stars in BBC's Our Girl, is soon to appear as footballer Bobby Moore's wife, Tina, in a ITV drama.
